

Secure Your Business with Biometrics

Attitudes about biometrics have changed. Your customers and employees use their fingerprints and faces to log into their phones, computers, accounts—sometimes even their houses. They understand that biometric authentication actually provides higher security than traditional passwords and codes.

With Sterling Identity, you can use biometric-based checks for employment and job promotion as well as location and information access. By verifying identities at every important step, you improve your security footprint and safeguard the data your customers entrust to you.
